1. The first of these is the fact that the theology of the Church is not a static entity, but a living and growing one.
It is a body of doctrine which is constantly being re-examined and re-interpreted in the light of new discoveries and new insights.
This is not to say that the Church is in a state of constant flux and confusion. On the contrary, it is a body which has a strong sense of continuity and tradition. It is a body which has a deep sense of history and a strong sense of purpose. It is a body which is constantly striving to be more faithful to the teachings of Christ and to the traditions of the Church.
It is a body which is constantly seeking to be more united and more loving. It is a body which is constantly striving to be more just and more merciful. It is a body which is constantly striving to be more holy and more glorious.
